Authors

Loretta Fabbri, Ph.D., is a Full Professor at University of Siena in Didactics and Methodology of Educational and Training Processes. She has conducted research aimed at studying working practices and devices for the development of professional communities, with particular attention to the processes of learning and knowledge building in organizations. Her latest research works focus on topics related to Transformative Learning Theory and Reflective Practices. She is co-director of the international journal Educational Reflective Practices and President of the bachelor's degree in educational sciences.

Francesca Bracci, Ph.D., is an Associate Professor at the University of Florence in Adult Learning and Development. Her research focuses on collaborative research methodologies and practice-based approaches to the study of learning and change in organizations, communities, and adults. Another area of research includes the practice of fostering transformative learning in a variety of settings, such as school, professional development, gender education.

Nicolina Bosco, Ph.D., is an Assistant Professor at the University of Siena in Experimental Pedagogy. Her scientific interests are: i) multiculturalism and radicalization in life and educational contexts and ii) experimentation and empirical evaluation of teaching-learning processes carried out in educational and training contexts, and iii) study and application of mixed methods research in a cross-cultural perspective.

Marica Liotino, holds a Ph.D. in Pedagogical, Educational, and Instructional Sciences. She is a research fellow at the University of Padua studying organizational models for gender equality and technology-enhanced learning. She works as an e-tutor in master's courses and is a member of the editorial board of the journal Excellence and Innovation in Learning and Teaching.

Monica Fedeli, Ph.D., is a Full Professor in Teaching and Learning Methods and Organizational Development at the University of Padova. She was a Fulbright Scholar recipient at the University of Georgia for 2020. She published more than 160 articles, books, and book chapters in various national and international journals, and book series.

Burcu Şimşek, is an Associate Professor at Hacettepe University, Faculty of Communication, Department of Communication Sciences. She is the founder and the coordinator of the Digital Storytelling Unit at Hacettepe University and has facilitated over a hundred digital storytelling workshops in Turkey and abroad with various groups on diverse themes since 2009. Her fields of academic interest are digital storytelling, women's studies, migration, new media, and health communication.

Maria Luisa Iavarone, is a Full Professor in Experimental Pedagogy at the University of Naples Parthenope. She is coordinator of the MA Degree Course in: Planning of Educational Services and MediaEducation and National President of CIRPed Italian Center for Pedagogical Research. She is author of over 200 publications including monographs, chapters in volumes and articles in national and international journals.

Chiara Scuotto, is a psychologist, psychotherapist in systemic-relational training and doctoral candidate in Learning Sciences and Digital Technologies at Pegaso Telematic University. She works on the evolution of behavior and moral judgment through new technologies and didactic-educational interventions to improve emotional and cognitive functioning of individuals.

Francesca Bianchi, PhD., is a Full Professor in Sociology of Cultural Processes and Communication at the University of Siena, Department of Social, Political and Cognitive Sciences (DISPOC), where she teaches Sociology, Sociology of education and Sociology of Inequalities and welfare. In recent years she has been studying the new participatory and collaborative practices in daily life with reference to the urban and social regeneration processes. She took part in the Italian Association of Sociology (AIS), International Sociology Association (ISA), ESPAnet Europe and ESPAnet Italia Conferences. She was visiting researcher at the University of Paris Sorbonne and University of Tours, Visiting Professor at the University of Paris Nanterre and University of Cork.

Miriam Cuevas, is a PhD student in Learning and Innovation in Social and Work Contexts at the University of Siena, Department of Social, Political and Cognitive Sciences (DISPOC). She participated in the research on migration in Italy conducted by the Interdisciplinary Research Unite on Migration (IRMI) of the Department of Political Science at the University of Florence. Her research interests concern migration and integration phenomena, the governance of reception and asylum and the study of local welfare systems.

Francesca Dello Preite, is a Researcher in General and Social Pedagogy at the University of Florence. Her main research topics focus on male violence against women, domestic violence witnessed by children, the training of educators and teachers from a gender perspective, female leadership and school management, and "care" within educational design. Among her publications are: Donne e dirigenza scolastica. Prospettive per una leadership e una governance al femminile (ETS, 2018); Mothers and Children in Domestic Violence (Women & Education, 2, 2023).

Dalila Forni, is an Associate Professor in Children's Literature at Link University - Italy. Her research interests include visual narratives for children and gender studies. On these topics she has several publications and two monographs: Children's Literature across Media: Film and Theatre Adaptations of Roald Dahl's 'Charlie and the Chocolate Factory' (ETS, 2020 - Siped Award) and Raccontare il genere. Nuovi modelli identitari nell'albo illustrato (Unicopli, 2022).

Alice Rizzi, is a Research Fellow in Study and planning of research and scientific dissemination activities on the topics of teacher training and teaching, with a background in social and applied anthropology. Her research activity deals with the inclusion of minorities in the educational field.

Marco di Furia, is a Ph.D. candidate in Neuroscience and Education, with a background in history and literature; he works on issues related to teacher education and digital media. His doctoral dissertation is on the innovation of educational pathways to counter bullying and cyberbullying at school.

Giusi Antonia Toto, is a full Professor of Didactics and Special Pedagogy at the University of Foggia, where she coordinates the Learning Sciences institute, a multidisciplinary research centre whose activities focus on innovation in teaching and learning processes from an inclusive perspective.

Coordinator of the Degree Course in Psychology, she is also the Rector's Delegate for Teacher Training and Continuing Education and Orientation.

Michelangelo Panza, is a Ph.D. student from DIN (National Interest PhD programme) in Teaching and Learning Sciences coordinated by University of Macerata, with a grant of University of Cagliari. He's currently studying to contextualize and frame the problem of the gender gap in physics in the Italian high school. Specifically, he is exploring the specificity of various STEM disciplinary identities in dialogue with gender stereotypes. Michelangelo has a background in History and Didactic of Physics.

Francesco Girardi, holds a degree in Economics, a Master's degree in Human and Environmental Development, and a Ph.D. in Educational Sciences. He has gained experience as an administrator and manager in local institutions, dealing with Social Services Programming for the Municipality of Naples, Education and Vocational Training for the Campania Region, and served as a board member of ISFOL. Since 2012, he has focused on pedagogical and social issues, taught General Pedagogy as an adjunct Professor, and collaborates with the Chair of Pedagogy at DISMEB-University Parthenope of Naples. He is a founding member and former director of LESS social cooperative, which focuses on rights protection, sustainable development, and social inclusion. He is currently employed by the Ministry of Education and Merit.

Sara Gemma, holds a degree in Literature and Modern Philology at the University Federico II of Naples. She is currently PhD student at the University of Macerata and Università degli Studi di Napoli Parthenope in the Doctorate of National Interest in Teaching & Learning Sciences: Inclusion, Technologies, Educational Research and Evaluation. Her research interests are focused on the impacts of educational poverty and school dropout in vulnerable settings. She is interested in exploring effective teaching methodologies for lifewide learning to encourage individual agency and foster social inclusion expecially for students from third countries, addressing to the educational challenges posed by migration.

Zoran Lapov, is a Researcher in General and Social Pedagogy at the University of Florence, where he teaches Pedagogy of Adolescence and Anthropology of Gender. Z. Lapov's professional profile is based on a linear course of pedagogical training, study and research in an intercultural perspective, developed in national and international contexts and characterized by a distinctly multi- and interdisciplinary nature.

Chiara Borelli, is a Research Fellow at the University of Bologna. She obtained a PhD in Education Sciences at the University of Bologna. Her research interests range among the following areas: outdoor adventure education, the ecological paradigm, families' pedagogy, gender issues in education, social marginalization, adolescents. She also lectures at the Reggio Emilia program of University Studies Abroad Consortium (USAC).

Eleonora Marocchini, is a psycholinguist and an independent researcher in Social and Cognitive Sciences at the Institute for Globally Distributed Open Research and Education (IGDORE). She obtained her Ph.D. in Psychology and Cognitive Sciences at the University of Genova. Her work focuses on social cognition and pragmatics in the autism spectrum and the neurotypical population, using the Neurodiversity Studies lens, as well as Science and Technology Studies, to analyze and challenge neuropsychological research on cognitive diversity.

Mariangela Scarpini, is a Junior Assistant Professor at the University of Parma. She helds a PhD in Education Sciences at the University of Bologna. Her work focuses on planning and management of educational intervention in social distress, educational support to social disadvantage, management and innovation of educational contexts, M. Montessori's thought, teacher reflectiveness, profession deontology, educational design and teaching innovation. She is also a Montessori Method teacher trainer, and teacher expert in Philosophy for Children.

Raffaella C. Strongoli, is Associate Professor of Didactics and Special Education at the University of Catania. The lines of inquiry of her research activity are oriented toward educational models and teaching practices in ecological perspective, design of educational spaces and outdoor educational experiences, educational metaphors related to learning-teaching processes, design of medial educational paths and inspired by the flipped learning approach. Among her most recent publications: Verso un'ecodidattica. Tempi, spazi, ambienti, Pensa Multimedia, 2021; Ambienti relazionali di apprendimento Prospettive teoriche e pratiche cooperative di progettazione ecodidattica, Pedagogia Oggi, 1/2023.

Martina Capaccioli, holds a Ph.D. in Learning and Innovation in Social and Work Contexts at University of Siena. Her doctoral dissertation is entitled The Multiculturalization of Work. Trade as a transformative arena. Her research interests focus on adult learning and multiculturalization processes in life and work contexts.

Cristina Boeris, is an Adjunct Professor at the University of Turin. She teaches Deontology, competencies and educational professionalities. Her research interests are Education for Global and Intercultural Citizenship. She is the author of numerous essays and articles on civic education and decolonial and intersectional education. He published Comunità di pratica democratica. L'educazione alle competenze di cittadinanza nella scuola secondaria di secondo grado (Progedit, 2022); with L. Milani and G. Gozzelino As-saggi interculturali. Una riflessione pedagogica sul progetto "Le ricette del dialogo" (Progedit, 2020) and with L. Milani and E. Guarcello Come una stella polare. Deontologia per insegnanti, educatori e pedagogisti affidabili (Progedit, 2021).

Federica Matera, is PhD, Research Fellow and Adjunct Professor in General and Social Pedagogy at the University of Turin. She teaches Social and Deviance Pedagogy and Intercultural Pedagogy. She is the author of numerous essays and articles on the following topics: social, emancipatory and militant pedagogy; feminist and decolonial pedagogy; migration, interculture and Global Education; and participatory research in multicultural contexts. Among recent publications, she has published Global Education e interculturalità. Prospettive per la cittadinanza globale e democratica (Nuova Secondaria, XLI(5). With L. Milani, she edited Accoglienza tra intercultura, cittadinanza e Global Education. Linee e prospettive per la Ricerca-Azione nelle scuole (Progedit, 2023) and Il coordinamento pedagogico dei servizi educativi nella comunità e nel territorio (Progedit, 2024).

Lavinia Bianchi, is an Associate Professor of General and Social Pedagogy at the University of Roma Tre, where she teaches Social and Intercultural Pedagogy. Her research interests relate to intercultural and gender pedagogy, and the decolonial and intersectional perspectives. For years, she has worked in reception centers for unaccompanied foreign minors and women victims of trafficking, as well as an Italian L2 teacher. Among her most recent publications are: Langer. La Pedagogia implicita (Morcelliana, 2023); Percorsi di istruzione integrati nei CPIA. Processi e pratiche di Educazione degli Adulti (FrancoAngeli, 2021).

Alessandro D'Antone, is a Researcher in General and Social Pedagogy at the University of Modena and Reggio Emilia, where he teaches General and Social Pedagogy, and Pedagogy of Early Childhood and Family. His research interests are related to critical pedagogy and the relationship between pedagogical theory and educational practices, family pedagogy and family education, social pedagogy, and pedagogical supervision. He has worked for several years as an educator in Home Educational Services and Neutral Spaces, as well as a school educator. Among his most recent publications are: Prassi e supervisione. Lo "scarto interno al reale" nel lavoro educativo (FrancoAngeli, 2023); Il sostegno educativo alla famiglia e alla genitorialità. Contenuti, strumenti e strategie per la formazione delle figure professionali a valenza pedagogica (FrancoAngeli, 2020).

Alessandra Romano, is an Associate Professor in Special Pedagogy at the Department of Social, Political and Cognitive Sciences of the University of Siena. In both teaching and research, Prof. Romano's focus is in generating conditions for adults, groups and teams to learn, grow and develop the inclusive mindset for collaborative inquiry and organizational change. Her strand of research is on intersectional approaches to transformative learning research, critical intersectional disability studies and disability management.

Arianna Taddei, is an Associated Professor of Didatics and special pedagogy at the University of Macerata. The main topics of research concern to: the promotion of inclusive education in international cooperation contexts; the application of the rights of the persons with disabilities; the study of the intersectionality approach; the training of specialized support teacher. The last monografy is: Come fenici. Donne con disabilità e vie per l'emancipazione, Milano, FrancoAngeli, 2020.

Marco Rondonotti, is an Associate Professor in the PAED-02/B area at eCampus University, teaches Experimental Pedagogy and Docimology. Research activities focus on the relationship between digital technologies and learning, and on the effects of digital technology on educational practices.

Federica Pelizzari, Research fellow at the Catholic University of Milan. His research interests focus on Media Education, Coding and Gamification, understood as innovative teaching methodologies, and towards applications and learning environments.

Giorgia Mauri, PhD student in Learning Sciences and Digital Technologies - Cycle XXXVIII. Her research focuses on the relationship between digital technologies and learning, in particular the field of virtual and immersive realities.

Simona Ferrari, Associate Professor of Didactics at the Catholic University of Milan, she is coordinator and member of the Executive Board of CREMIT. Her research interests are related to the themes of educational innovation and educational prevention in the digital age.